Clergy pray for A-Rod

State Sen. Ruben Diaz and members of the New York Hispanic Clergy Organization prayed for Alex Rodriguez outside of the Major League Baseball offices on Thursday.

They prayed that the New York Yankees player successfully appeals the punishment that he is facing following accusations that he used performance-enhancing drugs.

Some 50 clergy joined Diaz in the prayer to the Yankees player outside of the office building that is located at the corner of Park Avenue and East 47th Street in Midtown.

Remembrance for the transgendered

Never forget.
Allies marched in memory of those killed by violence.

A few dozen New Yorkers marked Transgender Day of Remembrance on Wednesday with a windy walk across the Brooklyn Bridge culminating in a candlelit vigil outside Brooklyn Borough Hall.

By the light of candles, names were read aloud, of people of various ages all over the world: Gunce Hatun, age unknown, stabbed in the chest in Istanbul, Turkey; Evon Young, 22, tied up, beaten, choked with a chain, shot, set on fire and left in a dumpster with a bag taped over his head—in Milwaukee.

And here in New York: Islan Nettles, 21, who died

Court case

Charges were dropped this week against the only suspect arrested in Islan Nettles' assault.

- Notably, the charges that were dropped were still misdemeanor charges, brought after Nettles was beaten but before she died.

- In court, an assistant DA made clear the office is still investigating Nettles' death as a homicide.

- Drinkwater maintained, "It's going to be one of those wait-and-see moments."

Quoted

"It's important to recognize it exists and to fight it."

in August after being brutally beaten in Harlem.

Denarii Monroe, a graduate assistant at Pace University's LGBTQA & Social Justice Center, was one of the allies who braved the night to walk across the iconic bridge in solidarity.

She noted New York "has it a lot better" than most places, but emphasized the value of confronting the transphobic discrimination that occurs.

"It's important to recognize it exists and to fight it, because without [doing that] stuff like this is going to keep happening," she said, referring to murders like that of Nettles and others, killed "because someone else couldn't recognize their humanity."

Erin Drinkwater, the executive director at the Brooklyn Community Pride Center, which organized this march for the third year in a row, said part of the problem is that many of these deaths are never resolved, adding to the feeling of being forgotten. In particular, she spoke of Lorena Escalera, a transgender woman killed in Bushwick the year before. Her murder remains unsolved.

Mayor hands over balanced budget

Bloomberg passed a balanced budget to de Blasio. / MAYOR'S OFFICE

Mayor-elect Bill de Blasio will come into the office with a balanced budget for the next fiscal year.

"We certainly did not have the luxury of having a balanced budget," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said.

Cost-savings, real estate deals and high tax revenues helped the city close a $2 billion deficit and balance a $72.7 billion budget for fiscal year 2015, which begins next July.

Quoted

"It doesn't make the next mayor's job easy, but it reduces the pain and it means one less thing he's got to worry about." Bloomberg

"We have done that without proposing any tax increases or cuts in essential services," the mayor said. The budget includes a raise for some city workers, but unions have demanding retroactive pay, which Bloomberg said requires more revenue.

A spokeswoman for de Blasio said his team is reviewing the budget.

City Harvest
aims for record

City Harvest, a food rescue organization, distributes food to over 500 hunger relief agencies in New York City. The group hopes to set a world record by repacking 200,000 pounds of food for hungry families around the city in 24 hours.

The food is donated by restaurants, farmers and supermarkets from New York state.

The event started Thursday morning with 400 volunteers working in shifts through Friday to accomplish the deed.

Normally the group would repack 15,000 pounds of food in that same amount of time.

Naughty. Police think the annual bar crawl is a nuisance.

NYPD's Midtown North Precinct urged some 30 bars, clubs and lounges in Midtown and Hell's Kitchen to not welcome SantaCon revelers.

"The number of participants has grown large enough to completely overwhelm the sidewalks and public spaces," Lt. John Cocchi, who heads the precinct's Special Operations division, wrote in a letter to members of the area's Bar & Club Association this month, as first reported by DNAinfo.

Hundreds of drunken Santas, elves and reindeer will flood the city Dec. 14 — spreading more than holiday cheer.

"Having thousands of intoxicated partygoers roam the streets urinating, littering, vomiting and vandalizing will not be tolerated in our neighborhood," Cocchi wrote, asking the bars to "not sponsor this event in any way."

Organizers for SantaCon did not respond to a request for comment.

Cop pleads not guilty in attack on SUV driver

An undercover New York detective pleaded not guilty to gang assault in connection with an attack on an SUV driver who was chased by a group of motorcycle riders.

Detective Wojciech Braszczyk, 32, arrived in state Supreme Court in Manhattan with his face obscured and left the building the same way.

He stood through his arraignment on charges of assault, criminal mischief and, the most serious, gang assault in the first degree.

Police are looking for an ATV driver they said assaulted a man trying to prevent him from entering a park across from the Conference House Museum in Staten Island on Sunday afternoon.

After the 62-year-old man tried to stop the driver from entering the park, the driver jumped off his ATV and struck the victim multiple times, police said.

The suspect and other ATV drivers then fled the park.

The victim was taken to Staten Island University North Hospital and treated for broken ribs and swelling, police said.

Police describe the suspect as a white male in his twenties.

Yellen takes big step toward being next US Fed chair

The vote. It was 14-8; three Republicans backed her and one Democrat voted no.

Federal Reserve Vice Chair Janet Yellen moved closer on Thursday to becoming the first woman to lead the U.S. central bank after a Senate committee approved her nomination and sent it to the full Senate for a final vote.

If confirmed, as is widely expected, Yellen would replace Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke when his term expires on Jan. 31 and become the most powerful woman in world finance.

A Democratic leadership aide said the aim was to hold a confirmation vote in the full Senate in December.

Nominated by President Barack Obama in October, Yellen is viewed as a monetary policy dove more concerned about the costs to society of high unemployment than about the risk aggressive actions to lower it will ignite future inflation or fuel asset bubbles.

She will preside over a central bank that has taken dramatic and unconventional steps to spur economic growth, and which is now wrestling with a decision on when to scale back a bond-buying program that has sought to drive down long-term market interest rates.

Stranded cargo jet takes off safely

A Boeing cargo jet, that was stranded overnight at a Kansas airport too small to handle the giant aircraft, took off safely Thursday and landed a short time later at what had been its intended destination, officials said. The Dreamlifter, bound for McConnell Air Force Base in Wichita, Kan., had inadvertently landed instead at the nearby Colonel James Jabara Airport run by the city, according to a Boeing statement. The plane took off about 1:15 p.m. and landed at McConnell 20 minutes later. Airport officials sighed with relief when the massive plane's wheels left the airfield. REUTERS

Civil rights. Alabama pardons Scottsboro Boys in 1931 rape case

Alabama granted posthumous pardons on Thursday to three of the Scottsboro Boys, a group of black teenagers whose fight against false charges that they raped two white women in 1931 helped initiate the modern civil rights movement.

The action by the Alabama Board of Pardons and Paroles clears the last of the Scottsboro Boys who had yet to be exonerated: Charles Weems, Andy Wright and Haywood Patterson. The three were among nine youths accused of gang-raping two women aboard a freight train in Alabama and convicted by all-white juries in the town of Scottsboro.

Trial postponed of accused gunman

The trial of accused Colorado theater gunman James Holmes was postponed indefinitely to deal with requests by prosecutors for further mental health evaluations of the former doctoral student, a judge ruled on Thursday.

Holmes had been slated to go on trial in February for the July 2012 slayings of 12 moviegoers and the wounding of 70 others during a screening of a Batman film in suburban Denver.

Holmes, 25, has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to multiple counts of first-degree murder and attempted murder, and has already been subjected to a court-ordered examination at a state mental health hospital. REUTERS

Kennedy cousin Michael Skakel was freed on bail on Thursday by a Stamford Superior Court judge, after spending the last 11 years in prison for the 1975 murder of a teenage neighbor in Greenwich, Conn.

Skakel, 53, was convicted in 2002 of murdering neighbor Martha Moxley, when they were both 15. Another judge last month ordered a new trial in the case, finding that Skakel's lawyer had been ineffective.

Skakel's new attorney, Hubert Santos, argued in court that his client did not represent a flight risk.

"He is one of the most recognizable faces in the country," Santos said.

Bridgeport State's Attorney John Smriga had urged for bail to be set as high as $2 million, saying "this was a brutal murder."

Skakel, the nephew of Ethel Kennedy and slain U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy, was granted a new trial by Superior Court Judge Thomas Bishop in Rockville, Connecticut.

Moxley's mother, Dorothy, and brother told reporters they were disappointed in the ruling.

Skakel's family issued a written statement praising the ruling: "This is the first step in correcting a terrible wrong," the statement said. "We look forward to Michael being vindicated and justice finally being served. We are thankful to God that after 11-1/2 years he will be reunited with his son. We are grateful for the love and prayers of Michael's many supporters who have sustained him through this ordeal." REUTERS

GENOCIDE \neq JOKE

Jimmy Kimmel should be fired for promoting racism. We demand ABC Network and its parent company Disney to fire whoever responsible for getting the segment aired.

GENOCIDE is NOT a JOKE

Jimmy Kimmel's 'Kids Table' show was aired on ABC on 10/16/2013 and talked about killing all the Chinese so that the states do not need to pay back their debts to China.

We are taking this seriously because the same rhetoric was used in Nazi Germany against Jewish people.

The comment "Killing all the Chinese" is NOT a joke, no matter who says it. Jimmy Kimmel and the ABC network sent a very bad message that it is "interesting" to kill all the people to whom you owe money. He later returned to the point asking "should we allow the Chinese to live?"

A formal, public apology must be issued by ABC and Jimmy Kimmel to ALL of its viewers, not just those who are Chinese, because this promotes hatred, racism and genocide. ABC should fire Jimmy Kimmel and anyone else responsible for letting this happen, and a policy must be institutionalized so that this kind of racist stupidity will never happen again.

If Kennedy lived? Experts discuss the person he'd be today

Alternate history.

Fifty years after his assassination, Metro imagines the world with President John F. Kennedy still in it.

Half a century later, historians of John F. Kennedy have shifted their focus from the events of his assassination on Nov. 22, 1963, to imagining the impact of a presidency that could have been.

"He would be seen as significant, but without the aura," says Robert Dallek, Kennedy historian and author of several books on JFK. "We probably wouldn't be talking about him now."

For some, the Cuban Missile Crisis, which transformed Kennedy from a Cold War hawk into the peace-mongering author of the first Nuclear Test Ban Treaty in 1963, is evidence that, today, he would be pursuing world peace.

"Kennedy became determined to avoid conflict with the Soviet Union and China," says Dallek. "The new dialogue with the Kremlin and the Test Ban Treaty were a measure of how he was trying to wind down the Cold War. If he had lived, we would have had detente sooner than we got it under Richard Nixon."

Many say Kennedy would have won the 1964 presidential election, having enjoyed a 70 percent approval rating. He also had a good chance of securing the Democratic majority in Congress, as his successor Lyndon Johnson did. That would have given him freedom from the southern Republicans pressuring him to halt civil rights reforms, and his own advisers pushing for war with communist dictatorships.

That freedom would have extended to the Vietnam War, says Jeff Greenfield, author of "If Kennedy Lived." "He was saying 'I can't do anything until I'm elected, but after that I'm looking for a way out [of Vietnam].'"

Biographer Thurston Clarke claims Kennedy would have moved faster, "removing 1,000 advisors from Vietnam by the end of 1963."

Dallek says America's social revolution in late 1960s, when racial and sexual movements converged, would have been "less pronounced" had JFK stopped Vietnam. "The war provoked those divides in society; there wouldn't have been that level of unrest."

Without anger over Vietnam, Richard Nixon may not have been elected to stop the war. If so, the seediest episode of presidential history, when Nixon resigned over the Watergate scandal, would have been avoided.

Still, others say Kennedy may have struggled if re-elected.

"The press were becoming suspicious of his affairs," said Greenfield, speculating that his infidelities would have become public and ruined him. His management of Addison's disease would also have been difficult, he said.

1 'Dallas 1963' by Bill Minutaglio and Steven L. Davis

Authors Bill Minutaglio and Steven L. Davis set the stage in the years leading up to the assassination in their much-praised new book, "Dallas 1963." Between the wealthiest man in the world, the country's most influential preacher and several other key figures all living in the same city and aligned against Kennedy, the book shows that an assassination was arguably inescapable and destined to happen in Texas. "There were about seven or eight people in the city who were just incredibly forceful, charismatic and almost cinematic in their nature and they were all joined in this confederacy to overthrow John F. Kennedy," Minutaglio tells Metro.

2 'A Cruel and Shocking Act' by Philip Shenon

New York Times reporter Philip Shenon lets readers in on the conversations of the Warren Commission in the days and weeks after Kennedy's assassination. Shenon, who was the New York Times' White House correspondent the year Kennedy was assassinated, reveals shady actions the FBI and CIA took after Kennedy died, starting the book by stating that evidence about the assassination began to disappear from government files within hours of Kennedy's body being returned to Washington. The information he unearths make this book an addictive read.

3 'LIFE's The Day Kennedy Died'

To mark the 50th anniversary of Kennedy's death, LIFE magazine is releasing a hardback book of the reprint of their entire special issue from 1963. The oversized book is full of glossy photos and also has frame-by-frame photos of Abraham Zapruder's iconic film footage. The book also includes a special article written by Zapruder's granddaughter about how the film affected her family.

EMILY LAURENCE

In the movies

How filmmakers react

Perhaps the most seen footage of all time is the assassination of John F. Kennedy, unwittingly filmed by bystander Abraham Zapruder and his 414 PD Bell & Howell Zoomatic Directors Series Camera. So it's fitting that the tragedy is an eternal fascination in movies.

'Four Days in November' (1964)

It didn't take long for a dry, "just the facts, ma'am" presentation of the before, during and after of the events to emerge, one culled from radio and television coverage.

'Parkland' (2013)

Based on a dispassionate book by Vincent Bugliosi — who also wrote the 1,632-page "Reclaiming History," which tirelessly shot down any and all conspiracy theories as unfounded — this star-studded recreation of the lead-up and aftermath of the assassination never entertains the notion that Oswald didn't act alone.

In "Parkland," Paul Giamatti plays Abraham Zapruder.
CLAIRE FOGLER

'Eat Your Makeup' (1968)

It only took five years for no-budget filmmaker John Waters to, in his first film, recreate the assassination in his parents' backyard, complete with Divine as Jacqueline Kennedy.

'Executive Action' (1973)

"At this point in time can you believe Lee Harvey Oswald killed President John F. Kennedy — by himself?" asked the trailer to this, the first Hollywood film to parrot claims that there was a conspiracy between Cuban undercover operatives, the CIA and others.

'Annie Hall' (1977)

The conspiracy floodgates were wide open by the '70s, enough that Woody Allen slipped a lengthy diatribe against the Single Bullet Theory into a scene.

'JFK' (1991)

In real life, New Orleans D.A. Jim Garrison was known for recklessly prosecuting people on the flimsiest of evidence. But in Oliver Stone's film, he was a hero. As a result of following Garrison's claims — and making up its own — "JFK" offers a fever dream plot that eventually includes everyone but Garrison, but specifically targets the New Orleans homosexual underground. Is it great filmmaking despite its insanity or because of it? Probably both.

'A Christmas Story: The Musical'

Last year, the theater world was graced with much-needed fresh holiday fare, and "A Christmas Story" became an instant classic. Back again on Dec. 11, this play is based on the beloved Christmas movie and features all the characters and plot points you love, plus music by up-and-coming composer duo Pasek and Paul. This year, much of the original cast returns. And yes: There's a leg lamp kick-line. The musical was produced by Peter Billingsley, who played the original Ralphie. This year it moves from Broadway to Madison Square Garden. Through Dec. 29, www.theateratmsg.com

'A Gentleman's Guide to Love and Murder'

A new musical — one that's not a movie adaptation — is a rare thing on Broadway. But this madcap murder mystery (of sorts) makes us wonder why they don't come about more often. With immaculate physical comedy by Jefferson Mays, who plays nine characters, and a plot about killing your own family for love (and money), this is one that will tickle just about any hard-to-please guest you have in town for the holidays. Tickets on sale through June 15, 2014, www.agentlemansguidebroadway.com

'No Man's Land'/'Waiting for Godot'

Sir Ian McKellen and Sir Patrick Stewart are pals in real life. And that makes them marvelously kinetic onstage as the leads in two repertory absurdist shows now playing at the Cort Theatre. "No Man's Land" is a tightrope tete-a-tete between two former peers reunited over an endless sequence of drinks: one now rich and successful, the other a failed poet. "Waiting for Godot" focuses on the despair of two old men hoping for a mysterious figure to save them. Both shows also star Billy Crudup and Shuler Hensley. Through March 2, www.twoplaysinrep.com

Yet another cherished novel-turned-film is getting the big-stage Broadway treatment. Yes, they're making "The Bridges of Madison County" into, gulp, a musical. But it's starring theater darling Kelli O'Hara (inset) alongside TV's Steven Pasquale. And the music is by Jason Robert Brown. So will it be that play we never knew we were always

'700 Sundays'

Back on Broadway for the second time after a successful run in 2005, this one-man show tells incredible true stories about Billy Crystal's childhood involving jazz, love and life as a Jew on Long Island. The title refers to how many weeks Crystal was able to spend with his father, and the story balances tenderness with broad humor to tell of the lasting effects of a child losing his idol at only 15. Through Jan. 2, www.700sundaysonbroadway.com

'Snow Geese'

Metro's critic's pick for our Fall Arts Guide, this play officially opened Oct. 24 and is coming to a close on Dec. 15. Mary-Louise Parker leads a strong cast in a weak play about family fortune in the face of misfortune. And there's a lot of symbolism involving geese. www.mcttheater.org

'Big Fish'

This family musical, based on the 1998 Daniel Wallace novel and the 2003 Tim Burton film, is about a Dance. There's more to see this season than Tchaikovsky.

Brooklyn Academy of Music

The Next Wave Festival at BAM has been rocking the fall season, representing a broad range of dance from classic and innovative artists such as Bill T Jones, William Forsythe, David Dorfman, Doug Varone, Anne Teresa de Keersmaecker, Brian Brooks, John Heginbotham, Kate Weare, Angelin Preljocaj and Hofesh Shechter. From Nov. 20-23, you can catch Susan Marshall's newest work, "Play/Pause," which features an original score composed by David Lang played by the live electric guitar quartet, Dither and Mantra Percussion. Reggie Wilson's Fist & Heel Performance Group presents "Moses(es)" from Dec. 4-7, a layered questioning of leadership through multiple versions of the Moses narrative set to a Diasporic soundscape with live vocalizations. Rounding out the festival is a world premiere by Tere O'Connor: "Bleed" integrates three smaller works into an evening length performance that runs from Dec. 11-14.

Dramedy. Vince Vaughn is a bit lost in the warm 'Delivery Man.'

The 2011 French-Canadian film "Starbuck" has been remade in America and soon in France. Is the premise really that irresistible? Now called "Delivery Man," it stars Vince Vaughn as David, a middle-aged slacker who, two decades prior, made rather a lot of sperm donations. Turns out he has 500 children; about 200 want to meet him.

This may sound like the makings of a broad yukfest, until you realize a heartwarming dramedy is the only way to go. David finds himself stalking each kid, helping them through individual crises.

Vince Vaughn plays a sperm donor with 500 kids in "Delivery Man." / JESSICA MIGLIO

For awhile it plays like "My Name Is Earl," with little missions that lead to triumphant endings.

That one of his first episodes involves a junkie daughter is a sign that the drama-comedy mix is off. Vaughn is in earnest mode, and he's never found a way to meld comedy and sincerity into something that commands the screen.

"Delivery Man" boasts some clever narrative twists. Then again, it wastes Chris Pratt, as Vaughn's lawyer/bestie, who starts off strong — grumbling about his four kids while touting the values of abortion — then mostly disappears. At first it feels like "Delivery Man" should be funnier because it boasts Vaughn; eventually it's because things simply should be funnier in general. MATT PRIGGE

A better 'Hunger Games' than 'The Hunger Games'

YA sequel. "Catching Fire" is incredibly watchable — and then it just stops.

Jennifer Lawrence and Josh Hutcherson rock the insane costumes of "Catching Fire." / MURRAY CLOSE

Most of what happened in "The Hunger Games" happens in "The Hunger Games: Catching Fire." On the page — which is to say, in Suzanne Collins' book — it's pure rehash. Once again, Jennifer Lawrence's teenage archery enthusiast Katniss Everdeen, coming of age in a post-something dystopia where the government is heartless and everyone has funny names, is reluctantly whisked away on a press tour then fights to the death inside a tricked-out dome.

The difference is slight: Instead of kids, Katniss plus boring nice guy Peeta (Josh Hutcherson) fight former Hunger Game champs, many of them adults (like Jeffrey Wright).

But the first "Hunger Games" was a bit of a botch — mannered, stiff and distractingly non-gory. A second film is another chance to do it right, and "Catching Fire" is a better "Hunger Games" than "The Hunger Games," as well as a better "Catching Fire" than the book.

The first film's director, Gary Ross ("Pleasantville," "Seabiscuit"), had no feel for the Ken Russell flamboyance of the Capitol, and definitely no feel for action. New boss Francis Lawrence ("I Am Legend") is no master. But he knows his way around an action scene without getting tripped up.

time. Elizabeth Banks, as obviously peppy escort Effie Trinket, gets unexpected hints of humanity. Then again, like the first, it can be a tease. A fearsome Hunger Gamer who chiseled her teeth into fangs is memorably introduced, then gets to do precisely nada.

The abrupt ending is a problem, too. Middle episodes in trilogies are put in an undesirable position, but the best — like "Empire Strikes Back" — find a strong note to close on before the action resumes later. This just shrugs and says, "See you in a year!"

I love the haircut.

Thank you. I know, I'm like a cat back from the groomers, where I'm so insecure. I need as much positive reinforcement as I can get.

As soon as something went up about your haircut, someone online chimed in with, "It must be a wig."

[Laughs] Yeah, I know. That's just how it works. The most important thing is to not read it. Jennifer! [Laughs] I'm really good at it. The only time that it does happen is when I'm with friends. I have two friends that are avid Googlers. They basically do what I would do if I didn't have the self-esteem. They're like, "What is everybody saying about Jennifer?" It's sweet, they care. When my Dior photos came out, I hadn't seen them so they looked them up on whatever Web site with all these comments, and I saw the comments and I was like, "I can't stop myself!" I started scrolling and it was like, "She's so conceited!" "She's a pig and I hope she dies!" [Laughs]

Never read the comments.

Exactly. I was like, "I'm sorry if I look conceited — I understand — in Dior couture clothes. But I didn't get to keep them. Why would you want me to die?" But that's just how the world works. I'm not going to get worked up about it.

Can I tell you the most ridiculous thing I've read about you?

Yes!

There was this "inside Hollywood" post on Reddit where someone wrote, "Jennifer Lawrence employs a professional joke-writer."

Employs a professional joke-writer? [Laughs] Oh my God, that is my biggest fear with this new ["Hunger Games" movie], because we're doing [press junkets] again. Last night I was laying in bed going, "Everybody's obviously going to get sick of it, the goofy, crazy [stuff]." It was maybe funny for one season, but if it just continues everybody's going to be like, "OK, calm down." So I tried to make a conscious effort to be poised and mature this time around. I was like, "I have to change myself"

How's that working out?

It's not. But I just have this thought that everybody's going to think it was perfectly planned. That actually goes into my nightmares. If I had read that, I would've been like, "Oh my God, how do I prove that it's not true?" But it will exhaust me. I'm so anxious and high-strung, and I'm such a worrier anyway that I've gotten good about making a wall of the things that I can't [deal with]. I'm like, "I can't even begin to worry about you right now. I'm already worried about cancer." [Laughs]

I worry about cancer. Yeah, everybody does. And then worrying gives you cancer. Everything does.

What's the most inappropriate thing you've done with your Oscar?

I put it in a closet by my bathroom — but only because it made me feel weird to look at it because I was like, "What am I supposed to feel? Am I feeling what I'm supposed to?" It made me over-think in my own house. And then I didn't want anybody who's coming over [to see it]. The last thing I want you ... to be is intimidated. So it's with my parents now. My mom can intimidate people.

High five

You've been very outspoken about body image issues and negativity.

We need to go easy on each other. And the media is so responsible for it. The worst part is that they pretend they aren't responsible for it. They're like, "It's the real world." Everybody puts that defense up of, "Oh, this is just the way the world works." But what if we said that in the '40s and '50s when black people had to use different bathrooms? "Sorry, welcome to the real world." Until you stand up for something and change it, the world isn't going to change.

Here's a random question: Have you ever come up with weird nicknames for parts of your body?

No, I haven't. Should I?

Well, I've been referred to — affectionately — as Sausage Fingers.

Oh my God! I'm Grubby Paws because I have sausage fingers too! Cool! [high-fives] Can you get liposuction in your fingers? I need to find a surgeon who will do that. My feet are very individual. My giant shoulders — at least they'll protect me.

Jesus Christ – Lord or Figure-head?

"Not everyone who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in heaven."

Matthew 7:21

Figure-heads are common in business and governments – persons who seem to be in charge, but in reality have little or no power or influence. Others decide. Sadly that is true even in Christianity. Is Christ Lord (master) in your life? ...In your church? He is our Lord only if we are in obedient submission to His will / word.

Try a new twist on Turkey Day traditions

Feast. We have ideas and tips for a meal that will impress the foodies and the pickiest mini-eaters at your table.

If you're the designated cook this Thanksgiving, you might be muttering complaints rather than offering thanks. But don't fret: We've got expert advice from creative cooks that will help you whip up dishes that are not only simple, but different. In other words, please look elsewhere for a green bean casserole.

We turned to award-winning chef and "Culinary Birds" author John Ash for tips on tackling the turkey. The first step is selecting the right bird. Ash recommends free range, organic turkeys, available at stores such as Whole Foods.

"Seek out heritage-breed turkeys — turkeys that were the original breeds before we got down to the turkeys that are on the market today, which are the [broad-breasted] white turkeys," recommends Ash. "It's like a whole different animal. It's not so big. The meat has more texture to it, and certainly a lot more flavor."

Looking to beat the crowd and buy ahead? "You can buy birds frozen, and you can keep a frozen turkey for up to six months," says Ash. "But you shouldn't keep one out for more than four to five days."

When it comes to roasting the bird, the chef prefers not to stuff it: "It cooks faster, the skin gets crispier and I love the crispy exterior of stuffing when it's baked in a dish, uncovered," he says.

The kid's table

Catherine McCord, founder of the family-friendly culinary site Weelicious.com, knows that the littlest guests can be the pickiest eaters. She's created several kid-friendly recipes, like these pumpkin pie parfaits.

"I've got two little whipped-cream addicts on my hands," McCord says, noting that the parfaits are kiddo crowd-pleasers. "It's two ingredients, it's very little sugar and there's no baking involved. I like to build it in beautiful stem-ware, or in cool jars."

As an added bonus, parfaits will last if pre-prepared. "I made so many of them when I first tested the recipe, so I put them in jars in the refrigerator, and we were still eating them a week later," McCord says. "If you make them for Thanksgiving, you can make them on Tuesday, and they will stay airy and light and fluffy."

box when dressing too. "It doesn't always have to be thick gravy," says Ash. "Compound butters are delicious. Those are butters into which you beat shallots, herbs and citrus." But if you really want to go crazy this year, Ash says look to other parts of the world. "I like Mediterranean salsa verde, and Romesco sauce creates a nice change of pace."

You'd probably be angry too if you owed as much money as Aaron Carter does./TAYLOR HILL, FILMMAGIC

Party's over: Aaron Carter is bankrupt

Uh-oh. Aaron Carter joins Toni Braxton, Teresa Giudice, MC Hammer, Kim Basinger and other fallen stars who have filed for bankruptcy.

In legal docs acquired by TMZ, the former teen star lists his assets as $8,232.16, which aren't going to come close to his liabilities, which total $2,204,854, with $1,368,140 owed to the IRS.

And this factoid may make you feel better about your paycheck: Carter lists his average monthly income at $1,998.75. So, hey! You might not be able to ever retire, but neither will Aaron Carter.

Chris Brown is kicked out of rehab

Well, that was quick.

Chris Brown has been thrown out of his Malibu rehab facility after he "flew into a violent rage" and threw a rock through his mother's car window following a family therapy session, according to TMZ.

The troubled R&B star has now been sentenced to 90 days in a different live-in anger management facility. Brown, who was most recently arrested for a brawl outside a Washington, D.C., hotel, was at the first facility for two weeks before the incident.

This photo was actually taken on Wednesday. It just happens to look like something you've seen a million times before. Don't get close for the camera

This is hilarious. Look at Will Smith trying really hard not to put his arm around Margot Robbie in this photo-call for their new film "Focus" in Buenos Aires, Argentina, on Wednesday. It makes sense. After all, the two co-stars were the subject of intense media speculation last month after they reportedly had a steamy romp in a photo booth at a party. "Once they pulled the curtain back to take the pictures, they let their inhibitions run wild, laughing, hugging and nuzzling each other in the dark," a source told Star magazine.

So now Smith, the professional he is, knows if any other forthcoming gossip about his marriage or his "nuzzling" come to light, media outlets will use any photo they can find of Robbie and him together. Smart man.

"If you get into a relationship and you really like someone and then things are being written in the papers that affect them and how they see you. Then it can get annoying."

If the system's broke, don't look the other way

We all know the Obama administration has a responsibility to ensure that the personal data collected by the Obamacare website is secure. But, the Texas Republican Ted Cruz fails to say it should also be his responsibility. Republicans always look for blame, never for responsibility for the impoverished, the poor, the sick or the handicapped. Just whose country did I fight to protect in Iraq? He doesn't really care about veterans' families with this broken system that, if you ask him, works just great.

Cheaters leave no legacy beyond failures

The only immortality that A-Rod will ever have is that he is a cheater. His ego still doesn't allow him to come to terms with that fact.

This year even Yankee fans remained silent because they were embarrassed that their .250 cheater-hitter was better than what they had on roster.

No one will remember A-Rod other than to remember MLB's period of endorsing other cheaters like Mark McGuire, Sammy Sosa and Rafael Palmeiro.

They mark an embarrassing period of MLB, when they looked the other way for long-ball home runs, and to put fans in the seats. DAVID DIBELLO, VIA EMAIL

Friday circus

A-Rod to release evidence

Lawyers for Alex Rodriguez are promising to release evidence in their client's appeal hearing with MLB on Friday, two days after Rodriguez stormed out of the hearing and vowed not to return. Rodriguez's side feels the arbitrator will rule against him and say they want to get the unheard evidence to the public.

Wanted: Jets secondary on hunt for turnovers

NFL. Ed Reed is pushing his new teammates to create more turnovers with a special gift.

Jets rookie cornerback Dee Milliner walked into positional meetings on Thursday afternoon with a new T-shirt given to him by future Hall of Fame safety Ed Reed. The shirt is black with a football in the center, framed by a faux "Wanted" sign in the style of the posters from the Old West.

It is a poignant and understated way for the Jets secondary to remember they are near the bottom of the league with just five interceptions and two forced fumbles.

"Coming in here, he's a great guy, an icon of football," Milliner said. "He came with the shirts, he gave them out. We're going to wear them around. It's a big thing, we want to hawk the ball. This is a real thing. As a [defensive back], you want to make plays and get interceptions."

The point of emphasis for the Jets has been a season-long struggle. The team has struggled not just creating turnovers but with inconsistent play in the backend. Antonio Cromartie, after a Pro Bowl season a year ago, has been a shell of his former self. He has struggled against small, shifty wide receivers and was burned a week ago on a long touchdown pass in Buffalo. Milliner has been erratic and unpredictable in his play and safeties Dawan Landry, Antonio Allen and Josh Bush have been victimized by blown assignments.

Last season, even with Darrelle Revis missing after a Week 3 knee injury, they finished No. 2 in pass defense and allowed only 19 passing touchdowns.

"[It is] not necessarily the secondary, it's just the fact that the big play [has been] the Achilles' heel of our defense. Like that's it, that's what's preventing us being an elite defense right now. Obviously we're playing the run better than anybody in the league and it's not close," Ryan said. "Go ahead, run it if you want. We'll see what happens to you. But if we fix — and when we fix — our Achilles' heel, which has been the deep ball against [us], when we get that fixed, I think we'll move into what we all expect."

Little to say

Holmes not in mood to talk to media

Don't worry about Santonio Holmes for this Sunday, despite the fact the injury-plagued wide receiver didn't practice Wednesday and was limited Thursday. He's fine and he doesn't want to talk about it.

No, he really doesn't want to talk about it.

Holmes, whose sessions with the media have become confrontational, downplayed his absence Wednesday and his limited work on Thursday presumably due to a hamstring injury. When asked if he'd play against the Ravens, the wide receiver responded with "Why wouldn't I?"

"Exactly what coach said, I was limited. What else do you want me to tell you?" Holmes said.

Jets vs. Ravens: Three things to watch

Metro looks at three things to watch for in Sunday's game (1 p.m., CBS):

- 1 All about Geno
In the loss at the Bills, Geno Smith had the worst game of his young professional career. He showed little pocket presence and played scared, consistently making poor choices.
- 2 Ground to a halt
The trademark of Baltimore's offense has consistently been the ground game, led by Rutgers product Ray Rice. But Rice has just 420 rushing yards, on pace for the lowest total since his rookie season. The Jets have the league's top run defense, making this a matchup they must win.
- 3 Wildcat look
Considering the Jets' struggles moving the ball recently, it wouldn't be the worst thing to see some more of the Wildcat this week to keep the Ravens' defense off balance. The addition of Josh Cribbs has made it much more potent. KRISTIAN DYER

Nicks back on practice field after ab injury

NFL. The veteran wide receiver still wouldn't specify exactly what was keeping him off the field originally.

Hakeem Nicks planned to put an injury-riddled 2012 behind him when he stepped on the field this season.

Instead, it's been more of the same for the ultra-talented, but oft-injured, wide receiver. Nicks was back in a limited role on the practice field on Thursday and said he plans to play against the Cowboys. The mysterious abdomen injury that landed him on the sidelines at Wednesday's practice has apparently cleared up — even if head coach Tom Coughlin isn't entirely clear on what the issue was in the first place.

"They say it's better to explain it as an abdominal, whatever that means," Coughlin said, referring to a diagnosis by the training staff. "I don't know when it occurred. As far as I know, it came up and he reported in on Wednesday with something."

The Giants need all hands on deck against a Cowboys offense which is fifth in the league in scoring (27.4 points per game).

When asked if he would play Sunday, Nicks delivered a nonchalant, "It's Dallas, man."

"I don't think it's going to be anything like that that bothers me," Nicks said.

But he would not specify exactly what was keeping him limited and delivered a cryptic reference to his agent, something sure to bother the Giants. Nicks is a free agent after the season.

"It has just been something all year really, on and off," Nicks said. "I was advised by my agent just to get it checked up a bit so that's all we did. We just wanted to get it checked up and make sure everything was good. I got good feedback and everything was fine."

Giants vs. Cowboys: Three things to watch

Metro looks at three things to watch for in Sunday's game (4:25 p.m., FOX):

1 All hands on deck
When the injury report was filed on Thursday, the Giants were in the enviable position of listing no players under out or did not practice. That includes Corey Webster, who has not played since Oct. 6, and would be a valuable boost to the secondary.

2 See for Miles
Speaking of Webster, he may be matched up with Miles Austin, who appears ready to return and play for the first time since Week 7. He's played in just five games this season with hamstring issues and has only 15 catches. Bad news for Giants fans, 10 of those 15 catches came in the season opener against New York. And with a healthy Austin, Dez Bryant and Terrance Williams also become more potent.

3 Windy weather
The discussion at Tom Coughlin's Thursday press conference is rarely about wind conditions on Sunday, but it was this week. Punter Steve Weatherford struggled in the wind two weeks ago and Coughlin was asked if he's worried. He said he's entrusting his punter, but it's something to watch. METRO

The easiest way to tilt a tight playoff matchup in your favor is by winning in the defensive game. The time to stash is now.

We're not going to sit guys like Victor Cruz just because he's playing the Seahawks in Week 15. But what we can do is think about which defenses to add now with both eyes on the playoffs. It's worth carving out a bench spot.

The Titans are available in far too many leagues. Even if you don't want to use them in Oakland this week, they face turnover-prone Carson Palmer in Week 15 and are at Jacksonville (aka the dream) in Week 16. Alterraun Verner and Jason McCourty are quietly two of the best corners in the NFL. A riskier option that still has a ton of upside is the Bills. They don't have a ton of talent, but are at Tampa in Week 14, at Jacksonville in Week 15 and vs. Miami in Week 16.

Avoid at all costs

The Giants defense has been rapidly improving during this four-game

The Chiefs defense is still a good play. / GETTY IMAGES win streak, but they are at San Diego in Week 14, vs. Seattle Week 15 and at Detroit in Week 16. Those are three excellent, high-scoring offenses to avoid. Also, if you've been riding the Ravens then you need to start thinking ahead right now. Baltimore's defense will be hands off against the Lions and Patriots during Weeks 15 and 16.

Best of the best

One of the waiver adds of the year has been the Kansas City defense. Owners will be rewarded with matchups against Oakland and Indianapolis in Weeks 15 and 16. The 49ers matchups are even better. They get Tampa Bay and Atlanta in those two weeks. Without wide receiver Julio Jones and with one of the worst offensive lines in football, the Falcons offense has become one of the worst in the league.
